Year 11 Course summary:

Michaelmas term

Depending on the quality of their coursework students will either embark on a mock exam project or make the necessary refinements and alterations to their coursework.

Mock exam project:

Students will learn how to respond to an exam paper set by OCR and plan their time effectively. They will be required to reflect upon and utilise techniques that they feel confident in to produce work that meets the assessment objectives.

Coursework refinement

This time gives students an opportunity to refine certain pieces or change elements of their project that they feel alters the consistency of the quality of the overall submission. Students complete peer assessment tasks using previous exemplar projects to build a more secure understanding of how marks are awarded and where they would put themselves on the mark grid.

Students are given the opportunity to visit a gallery to further develop their contextualisation and analysis skills and their wider understanding of art, as well as an option to attend a life drawing class to further develop their recording skills.

Lent term

Students are given their exam papers from OCR. By this point they should have a clear understanding how to independently meet the assessment objectives and plan their time effectively. The project work ends with a 10 hour exam where they produce their final piece.
